COUNTDOWN
show for one dancer

“Count Down” subtends the idea of time, the obsessive attempt to control the flowing of future events, the necessity to contain the free overflowing of our existence, in punctual experiences and precise expectations. It's the power of what is expected compared to what is a determined event that generates happiness or catastrophes and disasters.

A singular reflexion on waiting and on fear of something unknown, something that is going to come in our society and on our power of imagination compared to what present gives us, often better than what we expected, often a lot worse.

Coherent with the work of the dance company, this performance is never narrative, based on an expressive language of a strong visual impact, sometime abstract, surreal.

It's the start of a journey absolutely free from punctual description or didactic solutions, it is a creation that gives back strength and uneasiness of our emotional sphere due to the uncontrollable evolution of situations that we struggle to foresee.
